

Streamex Corp. to Present at the 21st Annual Needham Technology, Media, & Consumer Conference

May 7, 2026

WINTER PARK, Fla., May 07, 2026 (GLOBE NEWSWIRE) -- Streamex Corp. ("Streamex" or the "Company") (NASDAQ: STEX), a technology and infrastructure company focused on the tokenization of commodity real-world assets, today announced that Morgan Lekstrom, Co-Founder and Executive Chairman, and Christine Plummer, Chief Financial Officer, will present at the 21st Annual Needham Technology, Media, & Consumer Conference in New York City.

With the Streamex platform now live, revenue generation underway, and additional products in development, the Company is entering the next phase of its growth strategy. Management will outline how Streamex is focused on growing GLDY – a yield-bearing gold-backed tokenized security – and expanding its product offerings into other tokenized commodities, including a silver-backed tokenized asset currently in development. The Company's institutional partnerships, including with Chainlink and through participation in the Solana Policy Institute's Project Open initiative, will be highlighted as foundational to the development of regulated blockchain capital markets.
